Education

eClinical Review

Written opinions from Cleveland Clinic specialists on your physicians' most complex cases, typically within three days.

Category	Typical duration	Delivery model
Education & Training (case-based learning)	Typically 3 days per case	Virtual

Client need

Physicians regularly face complex cases where a subspecialist's view would confirm or change the plan of care, but sending the patient abroad is costly and informal advice is hard to document or act on.

Questions we help you answer

- What would a Cleveland Clinic specialist recommend for this complex case?
- Is our treatment plan the right one?
- How can our physicians get expert input without sending the patient abroad?

What you receive

Each case the client hospital submits receives:

- Written specialist report: assessment with diagnosis and treatment recommendations
- Specialist matched to the case: from any Cleveland Clinic specialty
- Defined turnaround: the report is typically returned within three days of the complete case

How it works

1. Case submission (day 0): The client hospital sends the clinical question, medical records and imaging
2. Specialist review (days 1 to 3): The case is matched to a specialist in the relevant field, who reviews the records
3. Written report (by day 3): The specialist's assessment and recommendations go back to the requesting physician

The three days start once the complete case has been received.

Expected outcomes

- ✓ A subspecialist's view without the patient leaving local care
- ✓ Treatment decisions confirmed or refined with documented input
- ✓ Physicians build expertise case by case