Finance Advisory: Plan Stage (deciding whether and how to invest)	4 to 12 weeks	Hybrid, Workshop-based

01 CLIENT NEED

New facilities, service lines and market entries compete for limited capital and are often advanced on enthusiasm rather than a clear financial picture. It sits in the Plan stage of Cleveland Clinic's five-stage finance advisory lifecycle: deciding whether and how to invest ("Can we do this?").

02 WHY CLEVELAND CLINIC

Delivered by Cleveland Clinic's Finance Advisory team. Cleveland Clinic runs 23 hospitals and 300 outpatient locations with about 83,000 caregivers, from Northeast Ohio to London and Abu Dhabi (as of December 31, 2025). Business cases draw on Cleveland Clinic's own experience opening services and facilities.

03 WHAT YOU RECEIVE

Modules are selected at scoping:

- Market and feasibility assessment: Excel-based demand model by service, viability, key risks and conditions for success
- Business case and pro forma: multi-year model showing return on investment and net present value under three scenarios
- Prioritization and roadmap: opportunities ranked on agreed criteria and a phased, funded implementation plan
- Executive presentation: findings and a go or no-go recommendation for the board

04 HOW IT WORKS

Hybrid / Workshop-based | 4 to 12 weeks

- Discovery (1 to 2 weeks): data request, interviews and options to test
- Analysis and modeling (2 to 8 weeks): models reviewed in weekly sessions
- Validation and readout (1 to 2 weeks): findings tested, presented and handed over

05 WHAT WE NEED FROM YOU

- Executive sponsor with decision authority and a finance lead for weekly working sessions
- Strategy and service line leaders to validate assumptions
- Data arrives on time; late or incomplete data can change scope and timing
- Recommendations are advisory; decisions stay with the client's leadership

06 EXPECTED OUTCOMES

- Leadership knows which opportunities are viable before committing capital
- The board decides with validated data and documented assumptions
- An approved, funded plan and models the finance team can update
