Finance Advisory: Plan Stage (deciding whether and how to invest)	6 to 12 weeks	Hybrid, Workshop-based

01 CLIENT NEED

Partnerships, joint ventures and acquisitions depend on structure, contributions and governance, and material risks are not always visible in summary materials. It sits in the Plan stage of Cleveland Clinic's five-stage finance advisory lifecycle: deciding whether and how to invest ("Can we do this?").

02 WHY CLEVELAND CLINIC

Delivered by Cleveland Clinic's Finance Advisory team. Cleveland Clinic runs 23 hospitals and 300 outpatient locations with about 83,000 caregivers, from Northeast Ohio to London and Abu Dhabi (as of December 31, 2025). The evaluation comes from a large operating health system that knows how operations, staffing and service mix decide whether a deal creates value.

03 WHAT YOU RECEIVE

Confirmed at scoping for the arrangement under review:

- Business case and transaction model: strategic fit, contributions and partner economics
- Structure comparison: alternative structures under best, base and downside scenarios
- Due diligence report: findings, material risks and open questions
- Executive presentation: go or no-go recommendation and negotiation points

04 HOW IT WORKS

Hybrid / Workshop-based | 6 to 12 weeks

- Discovery (1 to 2 weeks): data request, partner materials and interviews
- Analysis and modeling (4 to 8 weeks): model, structures and diligence, reviewed weekly
- Validation and readout (1 to 2 weeks): recommendation tested and presented

05 WHAT WE NEED FROM YOU

- Executive sponsor with decision authority and a finance lead for weekly working sessions
- Leaders of the proposed arrangement, with partner materials
- Data arrives on time; late or incomplete data can change scope and timing
- Recommendations are advisory; decisions stay with the client's leadership

06 EXPECTED OUTCOMES

- A clear view of cost, return and risk before committing
- Each partner's economics understood and material risks surfaced early
- Negotiators armed with scenario-tested numbers
